PDE offering agents free continuing education courses

Prudential Douglas Elliman has launched a free continuing education series on Long Island with Lieb at Law, PC.

The seven course series will be offered both to PDE agents and the real estate community at large. Dottie Herman, president and CEO of Prudential Douglas Elliman, said, "This initiative is important as the recent changes in the real estate industry have created some very new and difficult challenges. It is crucial to offer our agents opportunities to advance their knowledge and professional education to be able to better service their clients."

"The instructors of Lieb at Law's Real Estate School have been working diligently to fulfill the firm's promise to Prudential Douglas Elliman to collaborate in raising the standard of brokerage throughout the industry," said Lauren Lieb, business director of the firm, which is running the course pro bono.

The schedule includes Foreclosure and the Economy: The Short Sale Class (May 10), Conflicts of Interest: A Course on Real Estate Ethics (June 16), Mold is Money (July 14), Discovering the Home Inspection: Perspectives of a Home Inspector (Aug. 4), The Fair Housing Act (Oct. 13), Commercial Real Estate—Introductory (Nov. 10), and Foreclosure Filibusters (Dec. 1). Additional courses currently in the works include The Landlord Class; Property Management and Deal Killers.

Classes will be held from 4:30 - 8:30 pm at the Newsday Training Center at 235 Pinelawn Road in Melville, New York.
